On December 7, 1888, it was resolved that a college would be opened for males. The next month, Major Ruben Webster Millsaps proposed to donate $50,000 to the college if the Methodist Church would match the donation. They did, and Millsaps College became more than just a dream. The first scholastic session of Millsaps began on September 29, 1892, with a total of one-hundred and ninety two students enrolled. Millsaps produced its first graduates in 1895. Despite the fact that when first conceived Millsaps was to be an all male college, this was never the case. Millsaps College has always been co-educational. Through the years the students of Millsaps have focused on various extra-curricular issues to further enhance their education beyond just book learning.

The first big issue documented by the Purple and White was that of inter-collegiate athletics. Although Millsaps did participate in inter-collegiate games in 1898, shortly thereafter, the Methodist Conference forced Millsaps to discontinue its involvement in sports. The students voiced their dissatisfaction for many years. Finally, in 1910 Millsaps rejoined the inter-collegiate athletic scene participating in such sports as baseball, basketball, track and field, gymnastics, and boxing. Football was still prohibited and was not allowed until 1919 when the Millsaps team played its first game against Chamberlain Hunt. Millsaps students rejoiced that they were now able to participate in inter-collegiate sporting events because interest in athletics was high. Millsaps' rivalry with Mississippi College during this time, was one of the most intense that has existed on this campus. Vandalism and threats, along with many "wagers," were placed, and associated with the games. Despite the fact that most of the sports were played by the men, the women engaged in their fair share and have always been active on campus sporting teams.

Students next voiced their concerns over the Honor System. Initiated in 1908, it has been revised many times before students, in the spring of 1923, began to doubt whether it was really necessary. In 1924, opposition to the system grew so strong that it was abolished. It would resurface again though in the 1960's, and then again in the 1980's.

The 1930's saw the first seeds of civil rights and black awareness on the campus. Women also began to suggest that they were being discriminated against in 1933. In addition, a great number of Purple and White articles were devoted to recognizing blacks as people and worthy of being treated as such. In this same vein, there was a push to increase the salaries of the janitors, most of whom were black, in 1936. The push which recognized blacks as human in the thirties led to a general consensus that blacks were not inferior to whites in the forties (although some took exception to this idea).

The 1940's saw the outbreak of World War II, and with most of the men at war, the Millsaps women were given the opportunity to hold previously male dominated posts, such as editor of the Purple and White and Boba-shela. However, the women did rejoice in the spring of 1943 when the men in the V-12 unit of the Navy were stationed on campus. The V-12 unit stayed at Millsaps for two years. When the war ended though, the return of men to school gave impetus to what would be the biggest issue of this decade; the lack of social programs on campus. More specifically, Millsaps students of the 1940's desperately wanted to have the ban on dancing lifted. The students on campus continually cried out for faculty-supervised dances in the gymnasium.

Beginning in the 1950's, women protested the rules which affected their everyday lives; especially the ones which prohibited them from wearing shorts. In addition, most students were dissatisfied with the current cut system, which required you to attend the daily Chapel service. After several appeals, a new cut system was initiated in 1959. The talk of possible integration of blacks into the student body during the 1950's was generally supported by most of the college.

Oddly enough, in the 1960's, there was increased opposition to the drive to admit blacks to Millsaps. Although there were many supporters of integration within the Millsaps community, there were incidents of vandalism against property of visiting blacks. However, when Millsaps did decide to admit blacks in 1965, the administration was criticized not for letting blacks in but for its motives. Students and faculty thought that the move was too late and speculated that the admission of blacks was due to the $200,000 in federal funds the college would be receive for doing so.

Generally speaking, the Millsaps attitude of the sixties paralleled that of most people under thirty years of age during that decade. Although there was some support of the United States involvement in Vietnam at the beginning of the war; within a year the tone had turned to anti-war. A "Free University" in Jackson was organized by a small group of students from Millsaps and Tougaloo in 1967.

This group established itself in order to have free discussions rather than the standard lectures usually utilized by the professors. It was during this time that Millsaps earned its reputation as the hot-bed of communism in the Jackson community.

The students of the 1970's continued to concentrate on race relations and women's lib. When two Jackson State students were shot on Jackson State's campus by police, Millsaps students marched on the Governor's Mansion in protest and support of equality.

But during the decade of the seventies Millsaps really began to grow as a college. Millsaps students, though, were outraged when the Holiday Inn was built in 1970-71, because they felt the ideal of a liberal arts education was being tainted by commercialism. Many students pointed out the irony of having a hotel situated on the campus, while there was virtually no visitation policy in existence. This social pressure forced the beginning stages of a visitation policy to be developed at this time. Women were now allowed in men's dorms, and men in women's for the first time in the history of the college. Of course there were restrictions, both men and women had to sign into each others dorms, and the visitation rights were for only a few hours during the weekend.

The entire college was up in arms when in the spring of 1979 when the Else School of Management came on the scene. If the liberal arts education ideal had been tainted with the Holiday Inn in the first part of the decade, many students and faculty felt that the School of Management would endanger the integrity of Millsaps as a provider of quality education. Much of the controversy surrounding ESOM remained in the seventies though, and it has since become an accepted part of Millsaps' curriculum.

Racism and women's lib were carried over from the seventies to the eighties. Students were active in black awareness and were even motivated to protest Apartheid in South Africa by building a Shantytown in the Bowl in the spring of 1986. The night after it was built, some students burned down the Shantytown and angered most of the Millsaps community. Minority affairs, in general, have become a major concern on the campus, and the school is taking steps to increase not only black enrollment, but minority enrollment overall.

Once again, in the spring of 1986, a new Honor Code was proposed. After a year of debate, the Honor Code was voted down by the Millsaps Student Body. Around this time, the administration aroused the righteous indignation of faculty and students with the building of the Bell Tower, termed a "colossal waste of money" by some. By now the students have become accustomed to the hourly chiming of the Bell Tower, and most don't seem concerned with it much any more. During the past few years, students have begun to demand a greater voice in administrative decisions. One of the most controversial subjects in which the students want a voice is the visitation policy. Most students seem to believe that the policy needs to be heavily relaxed, and some believe that it could be done without.

Beginning with the 1989 school year the Greek Rush system was delayed until mid-way through the first semester. This rather controversial move was first discussed as early as 1983, but has taken many years to implement. As with most issued on the campus the student body is divided on whether it was a positive move or not, perhaps only time will tell.

Millsaps now begins a whole new century. It has come so far during the past one hundred years, and the possibilities seem almost limitless for the next hundred. With the constant improvement of the campus facilities, and the continued improvement in the student body, there is so much that can be accomplished here. So, onward we move into the 1990's and beyond . . .

The main research for this text was completed by Dr. Ross Henderson

Moore and compiled into print by Janie Eubanks. Dr. Moore gave to the Millsaps Community in every honorable way. He served as chairman of the History Department from 1930 to 1970, was the first Distinguished Professor, and was instrumental in helping Millsaps to achieve a Phi Beta Kappa chapter. Dr. Moore will be sadly missed by his students, colleagues, and those that came into contact with him.

Friday Forum

The students, faculty, and staff of Millsaps College and the members of the Jackson community are fortunate to have a college dedicated in providing a spectrum of cultural and intellectual programs. One of these well established traditions is the Friday Forum, a weekly enrichment series with topics ranging from Christian ethics to science education, from women studies to performing art, and from politics to even an audience participation comedy show. The presentations are funded and planned by the Public Events Committee comprised by a diligent group of students and faculty members who work semesters in advance to include the best speakers and topics for discussion. Some of this year's twenty-five programs and presenters included the following:

"Ballet: A Need for Rediscovery" with David Keary, dancer, choreographer, teacher.

"We Can Make You Laugh" Comedy Game Show with Scott Howard, Russ Smith, and Kathy Sorbo of Kramer/Magnan Productions.

"The Value and Values of Public Education" with Secretary of State Dick Molpus, State of Mississippi.

"Where the Meanings Are: Women's Studies Today" with Catherine Stimpson, Ph.D., Dean of the Graduate School, Rutgers University.

"How Not to Teach Science Fiction" with Samuel R. Delany, Nebula and Hugo Awards winner, science fiction writer, anthologist, critic and teacher.

"Seeing the Natural World in a Different Way: Christian Ethics Looks at Genetic Interventions" with Harmon Smith, Ph.D., Professor of Moral Theology and Professor of Community and Family Medicine, Duke University.

"Politics: More Than a Crapshoot" with John Jameson, School of Business, Harvard University.

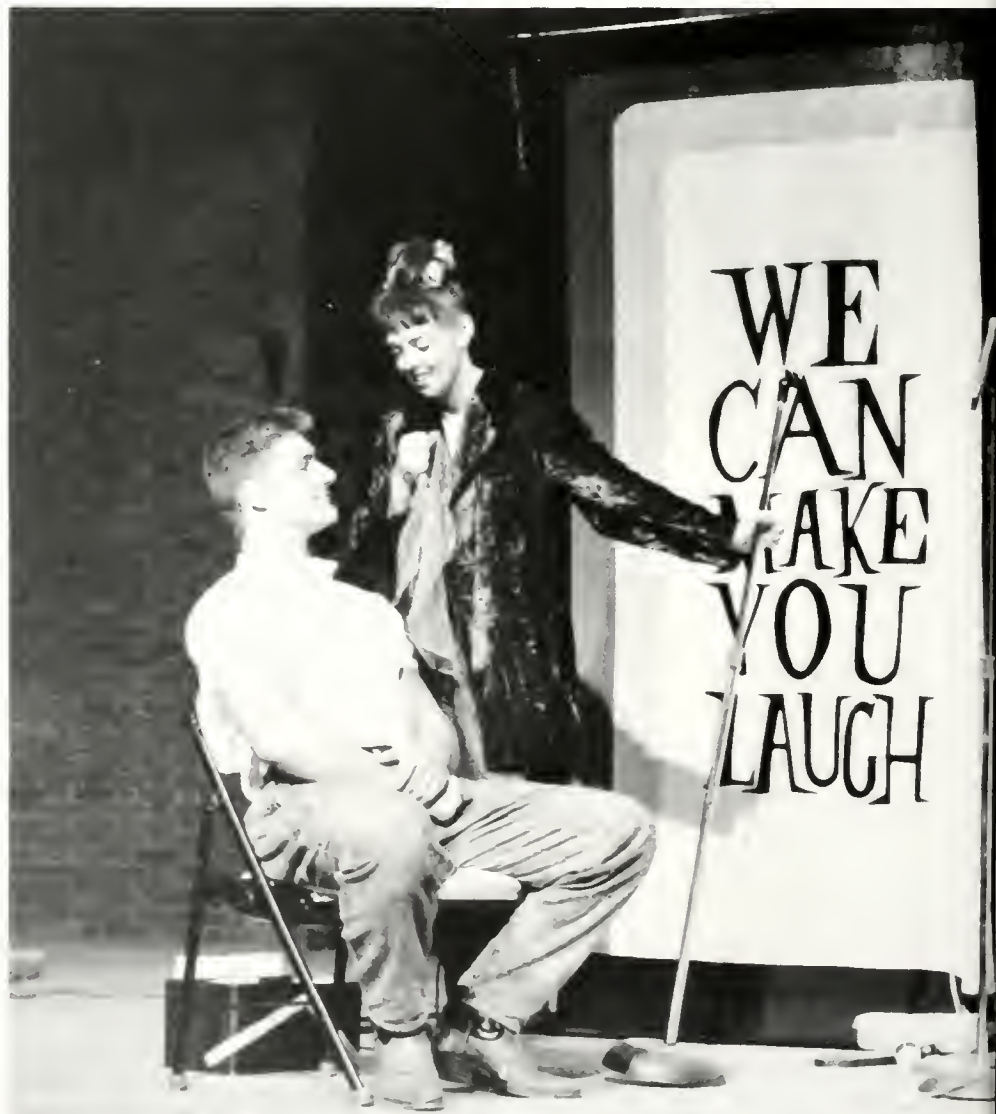

"Opening of the American Mind About Aging: The Role of Higher Education" with George Mad-dox, Ph.D., Professor of Sociology and Chairman, University Council on Aging and Human Development, Duke University.

"Gary Karr, Double Bass: In Recital" with Gary Karr, double bass, and Harmon Lewis, piano.

After each presentation there is a question and answer time where individuals can get specific topics addressed for a deeper understanding of the subject.

SPRING

Millsaps College Pres

Dear Short

We the starkly greedy student body being of several mind and money have about 12 things we would like to see changed

First, the food in the caf. tastes just like bullhorns. We come in here everyday as hungry as pickin' spurs but we look at the menu and we would rather eat of fence

Second, we're bored with the usual classes such as math, history, english... how about advanced studies in volunteer worship, or a beer appreciation class, or maybe a "how to meet and marry ELVIS" class

Now, a request from us repugnant men, we want girls! Girls that look like Kimberly. There are only about 67 good looking girls and we they are starting to look like Tammy Faye

And a very special request from us girls, we want men! Not those cup cakes. Like men, but real men, like Randy Travis

Well that's about it. Thanks for reading this horning letter and never looking back.

Arts & Lecture

“Lagniappe” — a Cajun expression for something extra — is just what the Millsaps Arts and Lecture Series offers. The 22nd season of the Series featured stimulating programs on theatre arts, music, politics, and literature.

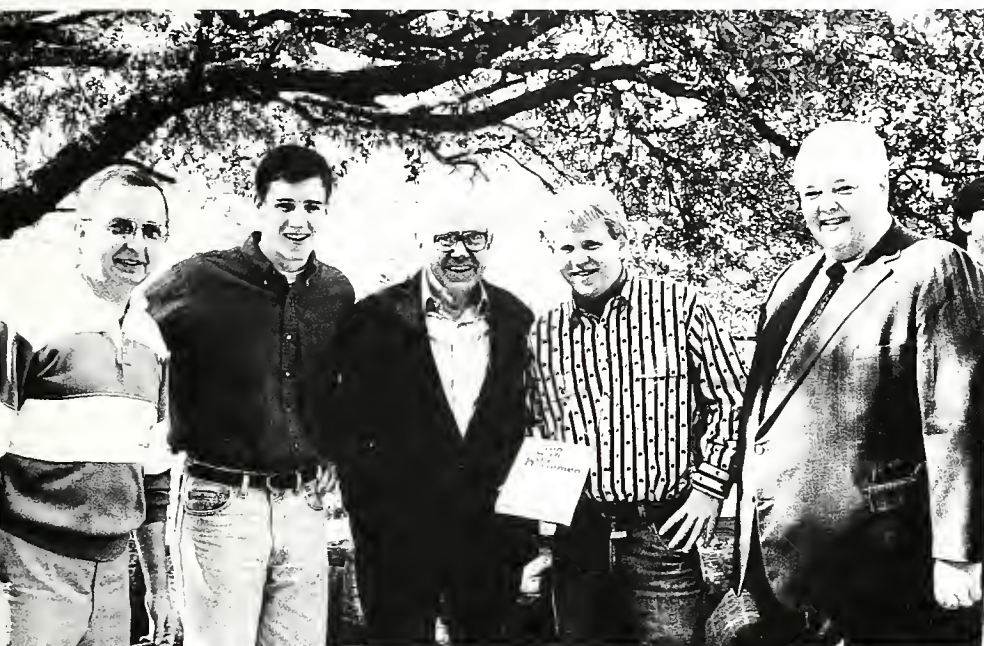

Designed to bring an added cultural dimension to the Jackson community, the Millsaps Arts and Lecture Series opened its season with a look at the film industry and its impact on Mississippi, both culturally and economically. Executive producers Fred Berner of “Miss Firecracker” and Frederick Zollo of “Mississippi Burning” discussed their films with Mississippi novelist and screenwriter Willie Morris, Mississippi’s Director of Economic Development J. Mac Holladay, and Director of Tourism for Mississippi John Horhn. The panel addressed the effects of the film industry on Mississippi’s image and economy.

Two concerts, presented by opera singer Paula Page of Frankfurt, Germany, and the piano quartet Amabile were also on the 1989-90 season schedule. Mississippi-born Paula Page is a 1964 graduate of Millsaps College. She is a leading member of the Frankfurt Opera and a regular guest in leading opera houses in Europe. Ms. Page was recently appointed professor of voice at the State Music Conservatory in Frankfurt, Wolfgang Goethe University. The Amabile Piano Quartet has captivated audiences with the great piano quartets of Mozart and Beethoven, Brahms, Dvorak and Schumann, plus a wealth of other composers. The quartet brings their unique skills together in a compelling performance of chamber music full of vibrant personality and excitement in the art.

Also in the lecture series was an evening with Georgia physician/author Ferrol Sams and noted American historian C. Vann Woodward. Dr. Ferrol Sams took up writing at the age of 58 and has won acclaim from critics and a growing number of readers. His first novel, Run With the Horseman, and its sequel, The Whisper of the River, are about growing up in the rural south and going off to the city for college. C. Vann Woodward, a native of Arkansas, is the dominant scholar in the field of Southern history. He fuses scholarship, conscience, and social responsibility when focusing on the relevance of the Southern experience for all Americans and the role of all historians in society.

This series of programs indeed provided Millsaps College and the Jackson community that extra something along the lines of cultural development and advancement.

Homecoming

Homecoming was held on the weekend of October 12- 14, 1989. It was a very fun filled and exciting time for students at Millsaps.

The festivities began on Thursday with Tap Day and later that night with the opening night of the Millsaps Players first production of the year, "Brigadoon." Festivities continued through Friday with a picnic in the bowl and a pep rally. 'The Next Best Thang' was held in the bowl and included a twister contest and pie throwing. Later the Kappa Alpha's held a basketball tournament to raise money for Muscular Dystrophy. That evening the Millsaps A&L Series presented Paula Page in concert, and later the band Indian Road performed.

On Saturday the Library held their annual book sale, floats were presented with Kappa Delta taking first place. The Football game began at 1:30 with Millsaps playing the Lambuth Eagles and unfortunately losing the game 20-14. During the halftime show Cherie Walker was chosen as Homecoming Queen. Despite the team's loss the party at Hal & Mal's was a rousing success with Mason Ruffner providing entertainment.

Voluntary Service

Millsaps students have often been in the ranks of social change. This year, the theme "A Century of Vision" stresses the even greater need for social awareness and the collective will of individuals to make the changes that are necessary for improving the standards of living in modern America. Students have not only participated in marches, movements, and organizations that have been created to initiate those changes, but have also helped people on the immediate level of the "here and now."

Volunteers from Millsaps have worked with the homeless and those who live in such dire financial straights that they cannot feed their families, and also helping out at Jackson's Community Stewpot — learning firsthand that all is not well in the land of milk and honey. Many students have become involved with Habitat for Humanity, striving to build homes for the needy and have also put a great many hours in the refurbishing/remodeling of Sandifer House, a local AIDS hospice. Thanks to them, the house is habitable, more comfortable, and nearly complete.

The health and welfare of others can be further exemplified in the services performed by students in medical facilities and schools. Faculties and staffs were relieved of simple tasks, enabled by the volunteers to focus their attentions where needed most.

In celebration of the College's Centennial Year, the Millsaps community launched the Centennial Voluntary Service Project, an effort which has as its goal the contribution by students, faculty, and staff of 100,000 hours of voluntary service to the Jackson area and its larger community. Recognizing that for the past 100 years this college has been the recipient of support and interest from many people in Jackson, MS, and around the nation, the Centennial Voluntary Service Project offers the opportunity to say "Thank You" to those who have supported us so faithfully by providing assistance to those in need.

We hope those seeing this project in operation in the community will recognize our commitment to encouraging members of the Millsaps community to think of their lives as service to the human family, the community beyond the Millsaps Campus.

The biggest project undertaken by the CVSP is the Bailey Magnet School mentor program. Some years ago, Millsaps adopted Bailey Magnet and we are hoping to strengthen the relationship between Millsaps and Bailey through our Voluntary Project.

Other voluntary work has been done for: Multiple Sclerosis Society, Junior League of Jackson, Junior Achievement of Jackson, Sims House, Sandifer House, University Medical Center, Girl Scout, United Methodist Church, MS Blood Service, and Kidney Foundation.

This program began January 1, 1990 and will close May 31, 1991. It is our aim to reach our goal of 100,000 hours of community service and more by May 31, 1991. The Centennial Voluntary Service Project encourages the development of leaders and givers in the Millsaps community, including its alumni, faculty and staff who are committed to helping those in need.

Centennial Gala

As part of the Centennial celebration, Millsaps College held its Centennial Gala on Thursday, February 22, 1990. This multi-media production orchestrated by Ms. Jean Luckett and her production crew presented Millsaps' inception and history. It utilized slides, videos, taped recordings of pertinent music, and live performances by Millsaps students, faculty, staff, administrators, and alumni.

The evening began with the announcement of the recipient of the Distinguished Professor Award. This year the award was given to two professors, Dr. Alan Scarboro and Dr. Judith Page for their contributions inside and outside of the classroom.

Then the visual show began. Acting as Master of Ceremonies was Mr. Bill Crosswell. What a treat — the past one hundred years of Millsaps College presented before us in an entertaining as well as informative show. Performances throughout the evening included: the Troubadours, Lee Lofton, Dr. Jonathan Sweat, a dance routine by Chrissy Coker and David Keary, a medley featuring fraternity and sorority songs, and John Jabaley as Willie Loughman. The slide and video tape aspect of the evening provided glimpses of the history and development of Millsaps as an educational institution.

Who would have guessed that faculty members acted in some of the plays or that football was banned on campus? Who would have ever believed that not only were there strict curfew rules but also restrictions on where they could go once given permission to leave?

Millsaps College has been shaped by many things and by many people and in return many lives and events were shaped by the campus community. The Centennial Gala certainly presented a wonderful documentary of the history of our school and its community of people.

1990 Student Symposium

The Environment

The Challenge for the Future

An annual event on the campus of Millsaps College is the student symposium, a forum that raises poignant questions about our campus community and its stand on major world issues. This year was no exception. The 1990 student symposium was sponsored by the campus' chapter of Habitat for Humanity and addressed "The Environment: The Challenge of the Future." The symposium presented some of the major problems in our environment and discussed what we as Millsaps students and as concerned citizens of this world could do to help alleviate those problems.

Some of the issues discussed were the ozone layer, the "greenhouse effect," and the growth of waste production and pollution. Also addressed were the increasing effects of technology. Another topic for discussion was the use of nuclear power vs. fossil fuels.

During the first evening of the symposium, Dr. Hugh Kaufman, on the problem of waste management, suggested that the government could reduce waste by 16% by putting five cent deposits on bottles and cans and strongly encourage paper recycling. Commoner further suggested that certain technological advancements, such as plastics, could be limited or even phased out and a return to natural products, like paper and wood, established.

Another important facet of the environmental issue is the misrepresentation of the problems by the media and certain lobby groups. Each speaker pointed out that the issues most familiar to the general public were actually the lesser in magnitude than those problems that go unnoticed.

Overall the days of February 13-14, 1990 were very successful in raising the consciousness of our students and teaching them that cooperation is a key to environmental protection.

The Challenge for the Future

Talent Show

The third annual Millsaps' Talent Show was a lively part of Major Madness weekend. Participation in the show was open to all members of the Millsaps community. There were singing groups and solos, dance performances and comedy acts, and several bands. For the second time, Mark Mays and Jay Ciaccio served as masters of ceremonies.

While most of the performances solicited approval by the audience, only the top four acts could be recognized for a prize. Taking honorable mention for their flair as body builders extra-ordinary was "Some Kind of Mules." Third place went to Paul Case and Pancho singing an original composition "Sweetest Thing." Lee Lofton and his superb voice took second place with "Maria" and "Wind Beneath My Wings." The coveted first place went to "Complete Darkness," an energetic modern dance troupe starring Rachel Furner, Malen Jones, Shannon Williams, Todd Cassetty, and Danny Sanders.

Other acts included Mariya de la Cruz, who performed two Hawaiian dances to "Little Grass Shack" and "Hawaiian War Chant," the Black Student Association singing "That's What Friends Are For," and Pam Bundy performing "People Alone," a ballet solo. These are only a few of the many talented acts of the night.

3rd Annual

Major Madness

A weekend full of fun and games . . . that's Major Madness weekend here at Millsaps and this year was no exception. Indeed, April 19-21, 1990 was a weekend for the incoming freshmen to get a little taste of the Millsaps life and they got a mouthful.

Beginning with music in the bowl by the "Barbers," an all Millsaps talent show, and the "Rocky Horror Picture Show," things got off to a roaring start. The festivities continued with lunch in the bowl and music by "Kaya and the Welders" on the 20th, followed by a concert that night by the Millsaps Troubadours, and bands from Millsaps: Jupiter Hollow and Indian Road. On the 21st the campus sororities held teas at their lodges. The games began mid-morning on the Galloway Lawn with fraternities, sororities and others competing in volleyball and tug-of-war just to name a few. A buffet style lunch was offered under a tent for those made hungry participating in the games and those who got hungry just watching. That night saw the end of the weekend events with a Greek Step Show and a concert by Zachary Richard at Hal and Mal's.

Players Banquet

The Annual Awards Dinner for the Millsaps Players was held on Tuesday, May 1, 1990 at the Holiday Inn — Medical Center. About fifty people attended the banquet to honor and recognize the achievements of those involved with theatrical productions during the year at Millsaps. This past year the Players brought to the stage four plays: Brigadoon, Death of a Salesman, The Philadelphia Story, and Les Liaisons Dangereuses. All four of the plays were well received by the public and usually played to sold out shows.

The list of the award recipients is as follows:

Paul Burgess — Alpha Psi Omega Award
 Elizabeth Reed — Mitchell Award
 John Jabaley — Best Male Actor
 Elizabeth Reed — Best Female Actress
 Paul Burgess — Best Supporting Actor
 Shelley Cornell — Best Supporting Actress
 Shelley Cornell — The Cameo Award
 Jay Hannon — Hanes Award for Scenery
 Emy Bullard — Backstage Award
 Shannon O'Shields — Freshman of the Year
 "Death of a Salesman" — Play of the Year

"THE PHILADELPHIA STORY"

The Hasty Heart

The Millsaps Players, during the summer session of 1989, produced this comedy-drama by John Patrick. This is the story of a wounded Scottish soldier. It tells the story of the last few weeks of his life which he spends in the convalescent ward of an Oriental hospital. These last weeks are dramatically changed by the sympathetic treatment his fellow patients and soldiers try to give him and his stubborn, prideful rejection of their treatment. The soldier's extreme independent spirit almost destroys the good intentions of those around him who want to make him happy. After falling in love with his nurse, he learns why everyone is treating him so kindly and most importantly, he learns the great lesson of loving thy neighbor as thyself. This production was wonderfully executed and taught a lesson in life and love.

The first dramatic production of the school year was the musical Brigadoon. It ran from October 12th-15th. The play was under the direction of Lance Goss, the musical direction of Dr. Timothy Coker, the sets by Brent Lefavor, and the choreography by David Keary, a Millsaps student.

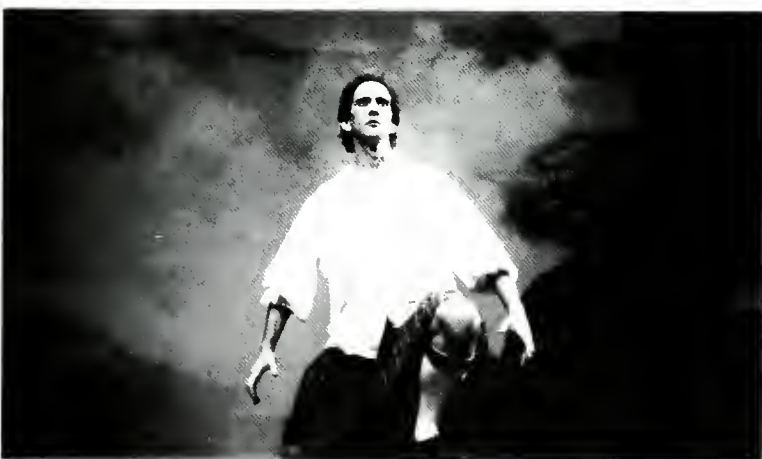

The play was about two lost American hunters in Scotland, who stumble upon a quaint little village hidden in the midst. As the play progresses the two men realize that something is amiss in the village because it seems to be 'caught in time.' A conflict ensues when one of the hunters falls in love with a young girl in the village. He is forced to decide whether to leave her or not, as this magical village will disappear for the next one hundred years when morning arrives.

The part of Tommy, the hunter in love, was played by Paul Burgess and his young love Fiona by Missy Crane. The supporting roles were David Brown as Jeff, his friend, Chrissy Coker as Fiona's sister, Lynn Geiger as Meg, and John Jabaley as Mr. Lundir.

This play had the larger cast ever used in a production at Millsaps and it had record-breaking nights for ticket sales.

Death of A Salesman

Arthur Miller's tale of an old salesman and how he is slowly fading into the woodwork of society was presented by the Millsaps Players in their sixty sixth-season on November 16-18, 1989 at the Christian Center Auditorium.

The main theme of this play centers around Willy Loman, an aging salesman. Even though at one time he was one of the best salesmen around time has taken its toll and he is losing his ability to 'make the sale'. He is prone to unreasonable bouts of anger and it seems difficult to care for this man, although in the end he gains the audience's sympathy. A second plot revolves around Willy's relationship with his eldest son Biff and the conflict that always existed between them.

The Loman family was wonderfully portrayed by John Jabaley as Willy Loman, the aging salesman; Cindy Foster as his wife, Linda; and Ken Thompson and Seth Holliday as their sons Hap and Biff. As their next door neighbors were David Laird as Bernard and Adam Pollock as his father Charley. Others in the cast included Shelly Cornell as the woman, Paul Burgess as Uncle Ben, Sammy Morris as Howard Wagner, Juliet Gale as Jenny, Dave Coats as Stanley, Erin Gardner as Miss Forsythe, and Elizabeth Reed as Letta.

This lighthearted comedy about the confusing love life of the wealthy and spoiled Tracy Lord was an excellent addition to the Millsaps Player's season. It was done in the round, and attracted sell-out crowds through most of its performances during the weekend of March 1-4, 1990.

Members of this award winning cast included Shelley Cornell as Tracy Lord, Shani Hedden as her mother Margaret, Everett McKinley as her father Seth, Caron Iden as her sister Dinah, Shawn McKenzie as her brother Sandy and Dave Coats as her Uncle Willie. Others in the cast were Becky Baker as Liz Imbrie, a reporter sent to cover the wedding of Tracy to George Kittridge, a young handsome businessman excellently played by Doug Mitchell, Sammy Morris as Mike Connors, another reporter, and Paul Elmore as C.K. Dexter Haven, Tracy's ex-husband. Playing the servants were Reema Rafii and Vere Jehl.

George Kittridge, Mike Connors, and ultimately C.K. Dexter Haven become involved in not a triangle but a quadrangle of love as they all vie for Tracy's affections. Tracy has already divorced Dexter, although he still seems to love her, and is currently considering marriage to George. She would never have considered Mike, after all she's out of his league, but they somehow found themselves attracted to each other. The plot gets very confusing and in the end Tracy ends up marrying Dexter once again.

The cast and crew did an excellent job with every aspect of this production and should be well commended.

Les Liaisons Dangereuses

The Millsaps Players, for their sixty-sixth season's closing show, chose the very successful Broadway and Broadway-based movie version of "Les Liaisons Dangereuses," better known as Dangerous Liaisons. This extremely elaborate and wonderfully exciting production was smoothly executed by the Players under the direction of Lance Goss and the technical direction of Brent LeFavor.

The story is one of deception, betrayal, and most surprisingly love. The story of the Marquise de Merteuil and her meddling in the lives of those around her, including the Vicomte de Valmont and Madame de Tourvel is wonderfully funny and tragic.

The cast included such great performers as Elizabeth Reed as the ever wicked Marquise de Merteuil; Doug Mitchell as Vicomte de Valmont, the tragic hero; Shelley Cornell as Madame de Tourvel one victim of the insidious plot; Laela Garham as Cecile Volanges, an innocent girl seduced by Valmont; her mother Madame de Volanges, played by Elizabeth Hagood; Dancery, Cecile's love played by Vere Jehl; Azolan, Valmont's valet played by Clif Jefferies; Shannon O'Shields as Madame de Rosemonde, Valmont's aunt and Madame de Tourvel's confidant; an Catherine D'Armond as Emilie, a courtesan. The servants were played by Sammy Morris as Major-Domo, Niles Hooper, John Lobo, Seth Fox, and Phyllis Bardoe.

A sister's a sister forever,
A bond that diminishes never,
A friend who is kindly and caring,
A sibling God chooses for sharing.

Few ties are as deep and profound
And with so much affection abound.
Though some thoughts are seldom expressed,
Love endures and survives every test.

Of the constants that rest in the heart,
A sister's a primary part.
She'll always be there when you need her —
You listen, you value, you heed her.

As growth, independence you ponder,
Your feelings grow deeper and fonder;
And life tells you one thing that's true:
A sister's a large part of you.

This year's football season could be labelled as a year of equals. Not only were the Majors 4-4-1 for the season, but they were also 2-2 in College Athletic Conference play, and 7 of their 9 games were close games between equal foes. All in all, the Majors made a fine showing for first year head coach Tommy Ranager and first year assistant coach Paul Dancsisin.

The Majors started the season on a long trip to Terre Haute, Indiana, to take on Rose Hulman Institute of Technology. The Majors and the Engineers fought to a 7-7 tie. The Majors were led by the running of Terrence "Truck" Turner. They returned to the road the following week to take on Division I rated Davidson College, in Davidson, North Carolina. The Majors suffered their first loss by a score of 15-0. The next week bought Sewanee into Jackson for the first home game of the season. The Majors earned their first win by dominating the Tigers 21-3. They were led by the arm of Rusty Davis and the running of Brian Campbell, and racked up 346 total yards on the day. The majors moved to 2-1-1 the following week when they beat Trinity University in San Antonio, Texas. The Majors cruised to a 31-6 victory, led by the running of Turner, the pass receiving of Parke Pepper, and a fine effort by the entire defense. This victory made the majors 2-0 in the CAC.

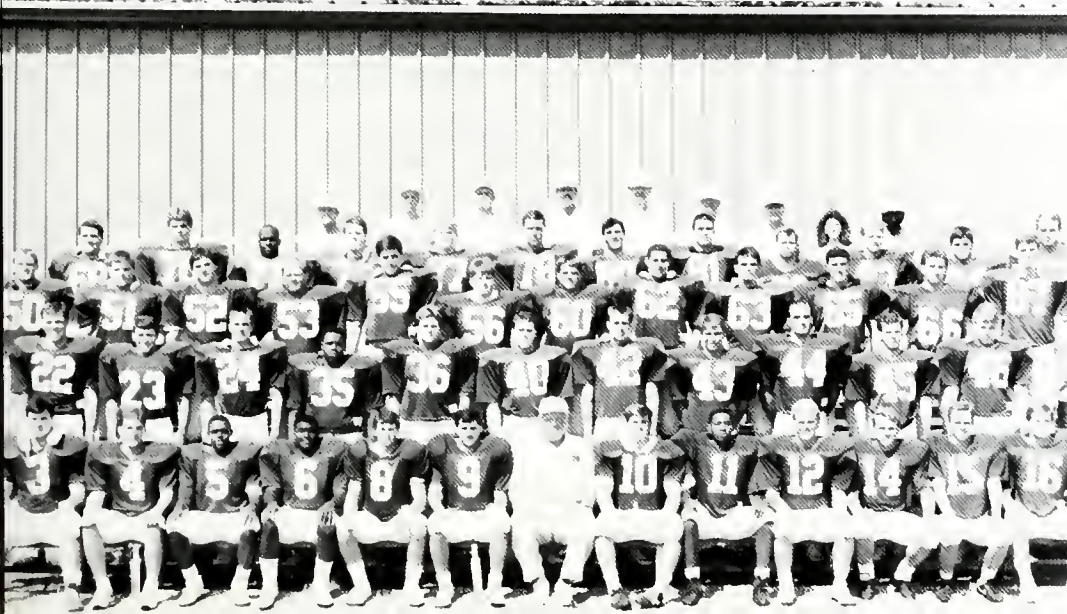

The Majors won their third straight game the next week in an exciting 7-6 home victory over Emory & Henry College, of Emory, Virginia. The Majors' defense was once again extremely rigid, allowing the Wasp's — 36 yards rushing, and only 79 total yards on the day. The Majors slid back to an even record in the next few weeks with back to back heart breaking losses to CAC champion Centre College, 16-15, in Danville, Kentucky, and Lambuth College, 20-14 in the 1989 Homecoming game. Despite these losses Campbell had two superb weeks of running, gaining 81 yards and 129 yards, in the respective games. The Majors returned to their winning ways in Barbourville, Kentucky, the next week. They defeated Union College 22-21 in yet another tight game. The Majors won the game on a 60 yard touchdown pass from Davis to Jerry Leonard. The final game of the season pitted our Majors against arch rival Rhodes College in Memphis, Tennessee. The Lynx narrowly defeated the Majors with 15 seconds left in the game, with a 35 yard field goal. The final score was 10-7.

From most indications, the Majors had a very successful season. Their defensive squad ranked fourth in the nation in rushing defense, allowing only 67.7 yards per game. The offense was also a quality unit. The running game was led by Campbell and Turner, both gaining over 600 total yards. The passing game showcased the passing of Davis, who averaged 81 yards passing per game, and the receiving of Leonard, Pepper, and Turner. The defense was led by several dominating members. For the second straight year, linebacker Trace McRaney led the team in tackles. Sean Brewer was a strong presence in the middle, leading the team in quarterback sacks, as well as being the team's second leading tackler. Flint Minshew, John Williams, Edward Benson, Bert Amison, and Chad Marks also contributed greatly to the team's defensive success.

The 1989 Majors, in this their first year of conference participation, were honored to have four of their members named to the All CAC Football team. These members were tight end Jerry Leonard, running back Terrance Turner, defensive lineman Sean Brewer, and defensive back Chad Marks. There were also eight Majors on the CAC honorable Mention Team; Steve Marinelli, Parke Pepper, Brian Campbell, Rusty Davis, Bert Amison, Trace McRaney, John Williams, and Edward Benson. The Majors led the CAC in total defense, as well as rushing defense.

The Majors will surely miss the performance of several fine seniors off of the 1989 squad. They will lose Benson, Davis, Marks, Stace McRaney, Leonard, and Amison. All these men have made great contributions to Millsaps football, and they should be proud of their accomplishments.

Football

The 1989 Men's Varsity Soccer Team began with a 5-1 win over Hinds, after which the Majors went to San Antonio, Texas to battle Trinity University. The Majors came out with a 1-1 draw against a team they had never defeated before. The season continued optimistically and the Majors' record was 3-0-3 when the rain came. The majors then went 1-8 but entered the CAC Tournament seeded first in their bracket, paired against Centre College. With great play from forwards Bruce Unangst and Tim Bruni, and solid help in the midfield from Mickey Brown and Ken Kellum, the Majors prevailed 2-0, giving goalie Joseph Lee his first shut out, but more importantly, giving the team a berth in the final. Despite excellent defensive play from Tony Melvin, the Majors lost 4-0 in the final to a superior Sewanee team. Behind the leadership of team captains Tony Melvin and Ken Kellum, the Majors had a much improved season.

With the second place finish in the conference being the high light of the season, the Majors finished well and are very optimistic about next season. Scott Maddox, Mickey Brown, and Tony Melvin were named to the all conference team. With a good spring training, recruiting year, and pre season, the Majors should be in great form for next year's season, which once again will culminate in the CAC Tournament.

The 1989 Millsaps women's soccer team rebounded from their worst season ever to post an 8 win — 6 loss record. The Majors were vastly improved in all areas of the game. Significant wins for the year were victories over arch-rival Rhodes College (4-1, 5-1), Tulane University (2-1, 7-4), and LaGrange College (5-0). The Majors were quite competitive even in defeat, with 4 of the 6 losses being one goal deficits. The most heart breaking march of the season was a 2-1 loss at home to nationally ranked Emory University.

Senior leadership was provided by Erika Rudgers, Janet Bass, Erin Clark, and two four year starters, Kim Tadlock, and Meme Soho. Leading scorer for the season was junior Anna Harvel with 10 goals and 7 assists for a total of 27 points. Senior Meme Soho was second with 10 goals and 5 assists and freshman Melissa Storm third with 6 goals. Meme Soho finished her career with virtually every match, season, and career record in hand. Her career stats are — 56 goals, 23 assists, for a total of 135 points. Rookie goal keeper Katie Pascal improved dramatically during the season to become a defensive force. The young Majors started three freshmen and four sophomores and look to be building for the future.

The 1989-1990 Majors, new members of the College Athletic Conference, had a fairly good season. Although their 12-13 record was one game shy of the .500 mark, they were a much better team than the record shows. The team played hard, but didn't seem to come through in the clutch moments of the games.

The Majors will lose three members from this year's team: David Chancellor, Rod Nixon, and Scott Carter. Of the three, Chancellor was the only regular starter. He led the team in scoring. He was also one of the best rebounders and free throw shooters on the team. During the last home game, Chancellor was presented a basketball for scoring over 1,000 points in his career at Millsaps.

Nixon didn't start but he provided the team with quality minutes. Carter missed the majority of the season with a nagging knee injury, and therefore wasn't able to contribute as much as he usually would have.

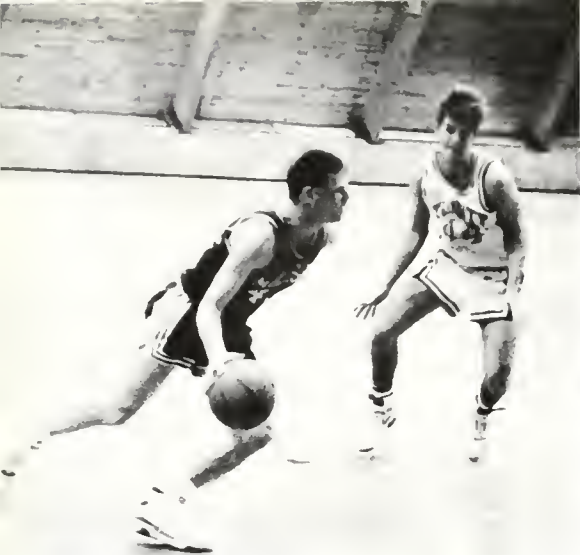

The players who returned from last year's team played as well as they were expected to, but it was the new recruits who stood out the most. Dan Campbell, a freshman from Atlanta, Georgia, stepped in and took the starting position of point guard. The Majors got consistent play at center position from Doug Wilson, a 6'9" sophomore from Hinds. Coming off the bench for the Majors were freshmen Chris Copass and Mark Dean, both of whom put in quality minutes. Both players improved a great deal over the course of the season, and were factors in every game. If these guys continue to play as well as they have, the Majors will be solid competition for every team that they play next season.

At the conclusion of the season Torrance Shelton was named to the All College Athletic Conference team.

The road to the 1989-90 Lady Majors travelled this season had its share of ups and downs. The Lady Majors were hoping to continue their winning streak from last season. Under the direction of the new coach, Sandra Rushing, and the inspiration of lone senior, Erin Clark, the Lady Majors were able to have a winning season. The Lady Majors, who started eleven members, had to overcome many obstacles throughout the season.

The Lady Majors lost Felicia Overstreet for the entire season due to a knee injury that required surgery. They were also without the services of freshman Angela Cockerham for the first part of the season, also due to an injury that required surgery. In the second half of the season, they lost the services of junior Elizabeth Hearn and freshman Stephanie Denly. Despite these losses, the Lady Majors carried on with hard work and dedication.

The Lady Majors' road trips were always filled with excitement and unexpected events. To ease the boredom of long road trips, freshman Elizabeth Black taught various songs to the rest of the team, including the coaches. There wasn't a trip that went by in which the team didn't laugh.

On the court, the Lady Majors were led by senior Erin Clark, who showed great leadership throughout the season. She possesses good knowledge of the game and was a smart floor player. She was ranked in the top 20 for leading scorers in Division III for the entire season. Erin will be missed greatly. Junior Jamie Fowler came on strongly towards the end of the season and made more progress than any other player on the team throughout the course of the season.

The Lady Majors' season was a successful one despite all the obstacles. They went into the Christmas break with a record of 4-5, of which no one was proud of. However, after the break, the Lady Majors were able to recoup, and went on to win 9 and lose 4. They improved with each game, especially the freshmen. Their season ended with three victories over Trinity, Stillman, and Spring Hill. The final record for the season was 13-9.

After struggling through a very tough early season schedule that included five top ranked NAIA or NCAA Division III teams in the first seven matches, the Millsaps College men's tennis team closed out its season by capturing third place at the tournament at Danville, KY. This was the tennis teams first conference competition since 1954.

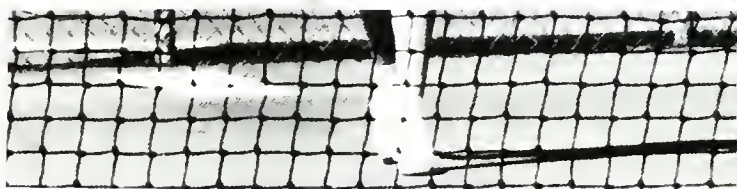

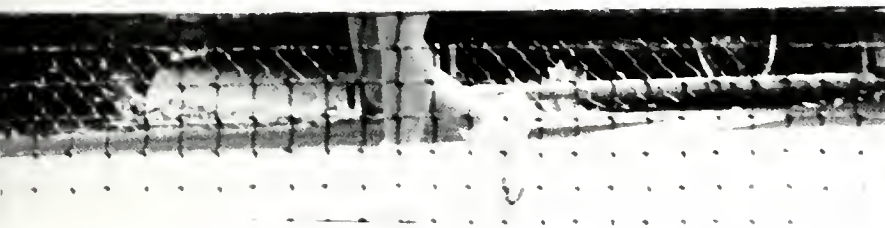

The CAC tournament was the highlight of a 4-15 season. At the tournament freshman Josh Priola and Greg Cronin took second in their respective flights, while sophomore Trey Ourso took third in his. Cronin and senior captain Jay Ciaccio won second place in the #1 doubles. Millsaps, at the close of the season, was ranked fifth in the fourteen team NCAA Division III South Region.

At the awards banquet sophomore Ken Thompson (7-8) was awarded the Most Improved Player award. With such strong players returning next season the Majors hope to improve upon their record and look forward to a better season.

Men's Tennis

The 1989-1990 women's tennis season was one of learning and adjusting for the Lady Majors. With a young team the Lady Majors competed against schools such as Emory and Sewanee, both of which are ranked in the division's Top Ten. Under the coaching of Coach Montgomery and Anne Culpepper, a former Millsaps graduate, the team overlooked this obstacle to accomplish significant improvement. There was some difficulty with injuries during the season, but the Lady Majors managed to adjust and give it 110%. The season ended with a trip to the South Regionals which were held at Sewanee. Rain and snow proved to be a hindrance, but the Lady Majors nevertheless had their best performance of the season. With most of the players returning next year, the Lady Majors will continue to develop better skills and are looking forward to a successful season.

The 1990 Majors baseball team did more than prove that this program is a fast growing success, they also proved that they are an immediate power in the CAC. In our first year of membership in the CAC, the Majors claimed the first CAC title for Millsaps College.

This year's team had many exciting players who played many great games. The Majors' season record settled at 19-18, but the team finished with a flurry, winning 4 of 5 games at the CAC tournament. They played great baseball throughout the season. The season began when the Majors won 2 of 3 games from Sewanee. The highlight of the series was a 22-9 Majors' victory. Junior pitcher Andrew Meyers pitched a near no-hitter in a 10-1 victory against Spring Hill College. The Majors also had a 3 game sweep of arch-rival Rhodes. During the series, Freshman pitcher Danny Meyers, 1990's outstanding Pitcher, improved his record to 3-0. A double-header sweep over Aurora University improved the season record to 12-6. Two days later, the Majors scored a big 19-2 victory over cross-street rival Belhaven College. In the game, the majors had their greatest offensive explosion of the season, collecting 20 hits in just 39 at bats. Later in the season, the Majors took 2 of 3 games from Sewanee to run their CAC record to 7-2. The Majors success again peaked at the season ending tournament. After losing a tough 11-6 game to Sewanee, the Majors went on an incredible winning streak. During the four straight victories, the Majors defeated Rhodes 15-3, Fisk 23-3, tournament host Centre 8-7, and Trinity 15-12 in the championship game. The Majors finished the season with an 11-5 CAC record, and 17-9 against Division III opponents.

The Majors were led by many outstanding players. The team raised their batting average nearly 60 points from 1989 finishing at .318. Offensively, they were led by sophomore center fielder, 1990 Batting Champion, Murray Meadows; senior first baseman, 1990 Best Offensive Player, Drew Manning; and Junior shortstop/pitcher, 1990 MVP, Kelby Gilmer. The team sported a .919 defensive fielding average led by 1990's Gold Glove Winners: Tony Melvin, Rod Ratliff, Eric Hamer, and Joe Welsh.

Baseball

The 1989-90 golf team was very young and inexperienced. The team is mainly comprised of sophomores and freshman with no seniors on the squad. This past season was a good learning experience for the players.

The team competed in three matches and finished with a record of 2-1. They played in the Washington University Invitational in St. Louis where they placed seventh. At the College Athletic Conference tournament the team finished fourth, missing third place by only one stroke.

On the individual level Brad Ray was elected to the All-Conference Team after finishing fourth overall in the tournament and leading by two strokes after the first day. Brad was also given the Most Outstanding Golfer award at the Sports Banquet. Also at the banquet Todd Sutherland was voted the most improved and Trip Slappey was the most spirited.

With everyone on this years team returning next year the golf team is looking to continue improving and feels that they can compete successfully in the conference next year.

1989-90 brought about the second year of existence of the Millsaps men's cross country team. Under the excellent guidance and supervision of coach Mary Ann Edge and manager/trainer Andy Rambo, the team continued to grow and excel. Ken Williams and Eric Schrock returned from last year's fledgling team and were joined by a group of very promising new faces that include Lacy Sturdivant, Jim Carpenter, freshman John Neff, Jay Tull, and standout senior transfer Todd "Wildman" Munch. Todd was the captain and anchor of the men's team, and had an outstanding year. Often, he beat many runners who were on scholarships at much larger Division I schools. At the CAC tournament at Rhodes, Todd finished ninth in the race to become Millsaps' first ever all-conference runner.

The women's team this year consisted of Becky Baker, Becky Brumberger, Christine Bakeis, Myrtle Hoover, Mary Beth Reilly, Blair Richards and Amy Tate. They participated in many events including the St. Richard's 5K, the Wells Methodist Church 5K, and the Governor's Cup. Team members were constantly "prodded on" by the constant reassurances of Blair "gung-ho" Richards and were marvelled by Becky Brumberger's and Becky Baker's never ending ability to keep chattering as they ran. With future increases in the Cross Country budget for next year the team looks to be growing and should fare well in the future.

Cheerleading . . . a sport that continues throughout the whole year. It begins the second the cheerleaders are selected and doesn't end until the last basketball game of the season. A smile is necessary whether we are winning or losing, whether it's sunny or raining, or whether or not you've got the energy to continue. The cheers and stunts displayed on the sideline are the result of hours of hard work and practice.

The Football cheerleading squad consisted of Ellen Deshotels and William Henderson who served as co-captains, Angie Cunningham, Robbie Everett, Jessica Deffes, Jim Megehee, Jerac Rice, Chandler Tipton, Melinda Wiggins, and Morris Wiltshire.

This Football season included travelling to such places as Indiana, North Carolina, and Tennessee. During all of the practices the cheerleaders made up new cheers and chants such as Robbie & Jim's mad dog chant and Morris's new version of the chair sit.

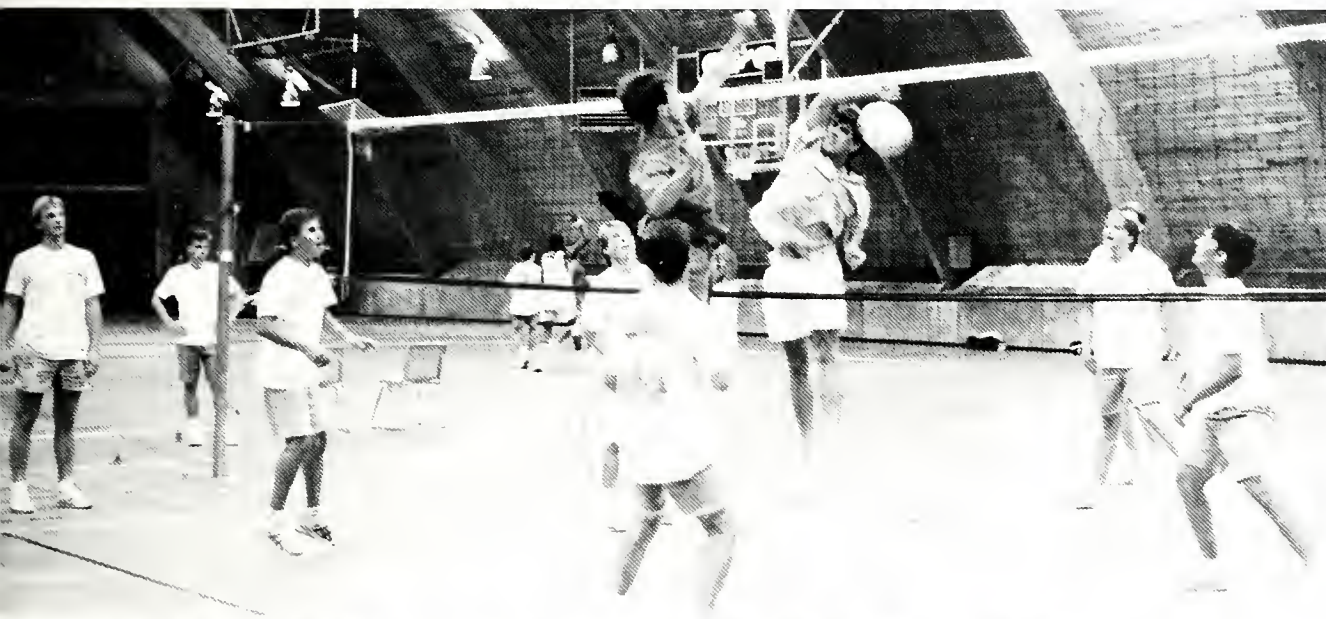

The basketball cheerleaders were Ellen Deshotels, Captain, Angie Cunningham, Shawn Gentry, Jessica Deffes, Alan Lange, Jim Megehee, Jessica Pugh, Chandler Tipton, Melinda Wiggins, and Morris Wiltshire. These cheerleaders helped to cheer the team to a great season.

Administrative Officers

The President is the Chief Academic and Administrative Officer of the College. He is responsible to the Board of Trustees for the supervision, management, and government of the College, and for interpreting and carrying out the policies of the Board.

The Vice President and Dean of the College oversees all academic programs along with the Library and Athletic Department. He is involved in planning orientation for new students, selecting and preparing academic advisors, hiring new faculty, and developing new programs.

The responsibilities of the Dean of Student Affairs include organizing the residential living quarters, dealing with Judicial Affairs, overseeing various student activities, and addressing minority affairs. The Dean must also work with the Student Body Association and Greek organizations.

The Vice President for Development is the chief public relations officer for the College. He is also responsible for the management of fund raising activities for Millsaps.

The duties of the Dean of Financial Aid include helping the families of students work out a suitable financial plan such that these students are able to attend Millsaps. It is the Dean's job to make sure that all aspects of Financial Aid are covered and distributed properly among the students. He is also responsible for the accounting of these funds.

The Vice President for Enrollment and Student Services is chiefly involved in the recruiting of new students for Millsaps. This office deals much more with the non-academic aspect of student affairs. Included in the job is the responsibility of conveying the image of the College to prospective students.

The chief duties of the Vice President for Business Affairs include the general business aspects of the college. The budget, financial dealings, physical plant, safety and security, the bookstore, post office, and food service all fall under his jurisdiction.

The Associate Dean of the College is responsible for the operation of the computer system on campus, covering both the academic and administrative aspects. He is also responsible for overseeing the Office of Records and assisting the Vice President and Dean of the College in the administration of the academic program of the College.

Dr. Patrick Taylor, Assistant Professor of Economics and Operations Management, has been with the faculty since 1984 and "thoroughly enjoys teaching at Millsaps." If given the choice, he wouldn't do anything-else. Dr. Taylor has served as freshmen advisor and is presently a member of ODK. His "signature" by which most students know him is his yardstick antics. "Where Dr. Taylor goes, his yardstick goes," commented a former student. Dr. Taylor is also famous for his horrendous humor and slap-stick comedy. His favorite television program is "ALF" while his pet peeve is students coming to class late. Outside of class, Dr. Taylor is active in his church. Recently he and his wife opened their home to two young Russian women who were members of a group of performers promoting understanding between the United States and the Soviet Union.

Another professor we've chosen to highlight is Mrs. Carolyn Thompson, instructor of accounting and Coordinator of Minorities at Millsaps. Mrs. Thompson has been at Millsaps since 1986. She came to Millsaps because of Millsaps' reputation, the opportunity to teach in Jackson, and the importance of being a college professor in her chosen career. Mrs. Thompson says that while she does enjoy teaching, there are times when she feels discouraged by the tendency of the majority of the Millsaps community "to go along with the status quo interests at the expense of each other's growth." Committing to the changes she's seen in Millsaps, Mrs. Thompson stated that "only the hard work of the faculty and the make-up of the student body has changed." Outside of Millsaps, Mrs. Thompson resides in Jackson with her husband and two children and is a devoted Christian. Students who have worked with her noticed that she is "very involved with students and works hard to motivate them." "She's easy to talk to and is always willing to give motherly advice."

Dr. Bishop loves teaching at Millsaps. To him, Millsaps is home because he attended Millsaps during his undergraduate years. Outside of teaching Dr. Bishop is involved in Chemistry research as well as with the ongoing development of the Millsaps computer program. He worked along with Dr. Shive and others to put together Millsaps' computer system from the foundation up.

When asked about any changes he sees in students, he regretfully reports that he finds that students are coming in with poorer mathematical and reasoning skills than students of ten years ago. Students seem more comfortable with the concrete thinking and less comfortable with abstract thought.

When not instructing his students at Millsaps, Dr. Bishop enjoys collecting guns, hunting, and fishing. He also is an avid Civil War historian. He uses his Civil War memorabilia in a presentation he often makes to one of Dr. Sallis' history classes.

When asked to sum up his favorite aspect about Millsaps in one word, Dr. Bishop said, "Atmosphere, the small school atmosphere." He prefers being able to interact with students on a one-to-one basis than teaching to a mass, as often occurs at large universities.

Graduation 1990

It seems not long ago we entered Millsaps as curious freshmen, scared by the very thought of college and what it might bring. Now, four years later, five in some cases, we depart this institution that has in a way, become a part of each of us. Most of us arrived on a hot August afternoon, tried to unpack quickly, then get rid of our parents because it seemed impossible to make new friends with them around. About halfway through that first semester it seemed we would be at Millsaps forever. But, the time soon passed like the blink of an eye.

The day we longed for arrived Saturday, May 12, 1990. Anticipation of this day builds inside each senior most of the way through the spring semester but reaches its height soon after 'comps' are completed. Then, it seems as though we can no longer wait — we must graduate.

That morning turned out to be a cloudy one, and Commencement exercises were moved into the gymnasium for fear of rain. With nervous students gathering off to the side, the gym was quickly filled with friends, parents, and relatives of the graduates. Although it was standing room only, no one seemed to mind. The ceremony included the Commencement Address delivered by Robert Mosbacher, Secretary of Commerce of the United States; awarding honorary degrees to Charlotte Capers, Thalia Mara, Robert Mosbacher, George Pickett, and Richard Truly; awarding of Emeritus title to Howard Bavender and John Guest; and of course the awarding of diplomas to the graduates.

After the diploma was received and the alumni were seated the 'weight' just seemed to have been lifted. Most found it difficult to suppress a smile at this point, since they had just passed the biggest test at Millsaps — they had survived and graduated.

...the last page

To my fellow students,

Through the past 215 pages I have tried to present to you a year in the life of Millsaps College. Unfortunately, it was not possible to include every event but I feel that this book provides a well balanced perspective. I would like to thank some people: if you appeared in any picture in this book thank you, that is the purpose of the Bobashela; thanks to Martha Lee and Cheri Gober for letting me bother you a zillion times; thank you Dean Fretwell for the trust you placed in me and my ability, Kay Barksdale for all the help with pictures, Mr. J. C. Anthony (our representative) for keeping tabs on the situation and always managing to track me down no matter where I was, Dr. Ward for serving as advisor, and Chris Kochtitzky for printing pictures. To my staff thanks for a job well done, keep it up next year.

Millsaps College means a great deal to me, it's hard to be a student here for four years and not feel something toward this school. I shall always remember the fond memories I have of my past four years here. To my friends, none of you saw me enough during our senior year, this book just ate up time, but it is you that I will always remember. Each of you (Mariya, Janet, Janie, Susan, Andrea, Christine, Kathy, and Gary) has touched my life in a very special way, and for that I am forever indebted (not monetarily) to you. Mariya and Gary especially, you two had to bear with, and tolerate me the most during this past year, how it is that you don't hate me is beyond comprehension, but thanks for everything.

Thus ends all the work on the 1990 Bobashela.

Goodbye Millsaps,

David Zippor
